Showcasing leading-edge geomatics and measurement technologies and solutions.

EE Publishers is running with a new and different event this year called SA GeoTech 2017. SA GeoTech 2017 is a commercial platform to market and sell geospatial and measurement technologies to a wide audience from across the economic spectrum. It is a targeted event with a more focused marketing mission.

In these tough times everyone is looking for new business opportunities and leads, and we are seeking to facilitate this by leveraging EE Publishers' knowledge of and connections with other economic sectors. SA GeoTech 2017 is about showcasing geospatial and measurement technologies and opening people's eyes to the power of technology and geo-intelligence and the various tools that make this possible.

SA GeoTech 2017 provides a platform for geospatial technologies, tools, skills, services, solutions and applications. Within the theme and sub-themes of the conference, there will be a focus on leading-edge innovative technologies, skills, solutions and applications for business leaders, managers, data analysts, engineers, scientists, project managers and decision-makers from all sectors of the economy. These will include:

- Measurement tools for infrastructure development – energy, telecomms, construction, housing, transport, education, health and security
- 3D design technologies for infrastructure projects and planning
- Technologies for collecting, processing and disseminating geo-intelligence
- Extracting strategic business value from geo-data
- Optimising geo-visualisation analysis for enhanced efficiency and decision-making
- Mapping and navigation technologies for optimised performance across all economic sectors
- Data management for asset operation and maintenance
- Geospatial imagery for management support and planning
- Monitoring and data management solutions for spatially-enabled enterprises
- Optimising retail and governmental operations with geo-intelligence
- Software and sensors for resource management – water, mining, agriculture and environment
- Geo-intelligence for optimising performance across the South African economy

PositionIT magazine from EE Publishers is the official magazine for SA GeoTech 2017.
